

QUIET MIND PRESS

The Night Pages

Digital Edition - Print at Home

This PDF is the complete interior of the book, licensed for personal use at $6.99. You may print it at home or at a print shop for your own use, as many times as you like, for one household. You may not resell it, share the file, or use it commercially. The printed paperback edition is a separate product and the best way to use this book.

Printing tips: print at 100% (actual size). US Letter or A4 both work. Single-sided pages are easiest for coloring and journaling.

Thank you for supporting independent publishing.

THE NIGHT PAGES

A journal for when you can't sleep

120 undated pages

QUIET MIND PRESS

The Night Pages

This journal lives on your nightstand. When your brain won't shut up at 3am, open it. Write until your hand slows. Body scan pages help you land back in your body. No rules about length, quality, or making sense.
5 × 8 in. Pocket-sized for dark rooms.

For the 3am brain

- Keep this next to your bed.
- When you can't sleep, open to any page.
- Write in the dark if you want. It doesn't have to be legible.
- Body scan pages are rest stops. Use them when the thoughts are too fast.
- Close the book when your hand slows. That's the signal.

B E G I N

it's okay to be awake

It's 3am. What woke you up?

Write the thought that won't stop looping.

List every sound you can hear right now.

What are you afraid will happen tomorrow?

Describe the darkness in your room.

What does your body feel like right now?

Write the conversation you keep replaying.

What do you wish you could turn off?

BODY SCAN

Before you write, arrive.

- ☐ Ungrip your toes.
- ☐ Soften your forehead.
- ☐ Breathe into your stomach.
- ☐ Drop your shoulders.
- ☐ Close your eyes between sentences.

Now breathe. In 4, hold 4, out 6.
Repeat three times.

Name five things that are true right now.

What would morning-you say to right-now-you?

Describe the weight of the blanket.

What's the thing you didn't say today?

List three things that went fine today. They don't have to be impressive.

What does tired feel like in your specific body?
